Green Cross Denmark wants to express our full support to the global citizen consultation in the World Wide Views on Global Warming project.

Citizens are the true actors in the process of changing the energy consumption of the world into a long-term sustainable consumption. Accordingly, asking the citizens about their views upon the global climate policies is a very needed and relevant endeavor.

We wish for the WWViews on Global Warming that it would succeed to reach the goals of making a truly global citizen deliberation. Let us suggest everyone who can help them reach the goals to do so - by finding partners around the world, helping with funds or by lending a hand in communicating the project and the voices of the citizens into COP15.

Yours sincerely

Joan Petersen
